TAKING THE CRIME SCENE INTO THE INTERROGATION ROOM

Instructor:
Daniel Craft

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This fast paced interactive two (2) day seminar focuses on understanding the crime scene from a behavioral approach and then taking that valuable understanding directly into the interrogation room. What can be learned from the crime scene becomes truly powerful when it can be used by the skilled investigator in their efforts to narrow down their pool of suspects through the interview and interrogation process. Crime scenes have a "psychological fingerprint" as well as physical evidence and in this course the student will learn the skills necessary to utilize their knowledge of both, in the one on one, face to face interrogation of the potential suspects.

Criminals are people and people are predictable. Their thoughts, feelings and emotions are seen in their crime and can be "read" through the evidence they leave at the crime scene. The ability of the trained investigator to properly interpret what they and their crime scene specialists see at the crime scene will provide them with that extra "edge" when the interrogation starts. If you have the right suspect in the interrogation room chair, they will soon realize that you know more about the crime they committed and how they committed it than they ever thought possible. You will then be in a position of power with a much greater chance of obtaining a confession. They simply can't get around the fact that "You Know".

This course is designed for criminal investigators, crime scene specialists, as well as uniform officers who have the responsibility of conducting their own interviews and interrogations. It stresses the vital importance of how the "crime investigation team" must work together to maximize the information gained by a thorough physical and psychological examination of the crime scene. It is not a matter of how big your department is, but instead a matter of how sincere your commitment is to learn a new and better way. It will forever change the way you work crime scenes and interrogate your suspects.

DAILY SCHEDULE

Classes will begin each day promptly at 8:00 a.m. and conclude at about 5:00 p.m. unless otherwise stated in "Special Notes for Students" on the Class Flyer.

NOTE: Some classes may start at a different time - check the "Special Notes for Students" link for your particular class for any changes to the class starting time.

TARGET AUDIENCE

This course is designed for criminal investigators, crime scene specialists, as well as uniform officers who have the responsibility of conducting their own interviews and interrogations. This class will benefit any investigator or officer who is looking to improve his/her skills in the art of interrogation, or the gentle art of persuasion. Three things solve cases: 1. Physical evidence, 2. Witnesses, 3. Confessions. It is very important to any investigation to know how to get a criminal suspect to confess, or get them to "yes". This class will make you a much better interrogator and give you the added confidence to enter a room and get the suspect to confess.
